☐ Yes, I want to help people with addiction to alcohol and other drugs by advocating for recovery issues. I am willing to:

Check all that apply.

- ☐ Add my name to those supporting recovery advocacy in my area
- ☐ Be placed on the national Faces and Voices of Recovery mailing list
- ☐ Receive e-mail alerts and information about recovery advocacy activities
- ☐ Write letters to, call, or visit my elected officials on recovery issues
- ☐ Attend local advocacy events

You can reach me at:

NAME

ADDRESS

CITY STATE ZIP

PHONE

FAX

E-MAIL

Names on our mailing list will not be sold for commercial purposes.

"By our silence, we let others define us."

—Susan Rook, recovering alcoholic and addict, advocate

One of the greatest strengths the recovery community has is our diversity. We are as varied as America—all ages, races, sexual orientations, we're blue collar and white collar—and we each achieved recovery in our own way. By speaking out together, we have the power to advocate on behalf of recovery and for those who benefit from it—those still struggling with addiction to alcohol and other drugs and their families.

...together.

"As an advocate, you're an example to the whole community. It feels good to give back that way."

—Sonya Baker, recovering alcoholic, advocate

Become a recovery advocate.

Get involved. Contact your local recovery advocacy organization, or contact Faces and Voices of Recovery to find a group in your area.

Faces and Voices of Recovery
901 N. Washington St.
Suite 601
Alexandria, VA 22314
703-299-6760
www.facesandvoicesofrecovery.org

FACES & VOICES OF RECOVERY

For more recovery information, visit the National Alcohol and Drug Addiction Recovery Month Web site: www.samhsa.gov

Join us.

Show America that recovery from addiction to alcohol and other drugs is a reality.

Speaking out...

The road to recovery is tough, no matter what steps you take to get there. It's a life or death choice—and recovery is the road to life. Now that recovery has given so much to you, you can give back by speaking out and helping others achieve recovery.

"I try to make legislators see how much money we'd save if we invested in access to treatment."

—Chris Kelly, recovering opiate addict, methadone maintenance advocate

"I'm an advocate so my kids don't have to suffer with addiction like I did."

—Joe Powell, recovering alcoholic and addict, advocate

Recovery is a reality.

Recovery advocacy helps make it a reality for those in need.

We know that addiction to alcohol and other drugs costs America $294 billion per year.* But we also know millions of people are in recovery. It is finally time for the entire recovery community—those in recovery, our families and allies—to speak with one voice, knock down barriers so others can find recovery and save lives.

Together, we can break down the wall of shame and stigma that creates discrimination against people in recovery. We can help future generations of children and families live free of addiction to alcohol and other drugs.

* U.S. Department of Health and Human Services/SAMHSA/CSAT, National Estimates of Expenditures for Substance Abuse

Be living proof that there are real solutions to addiction.

With your help, we can change the debate, and make legislators, community leaders and all Americans start focusing on the solution of recovery instead of the problem of addiction.

You don't need any special skills to be an advocate. Everyone has something special to offer. All you need is the willingness to get active and prove that recovery is real.

Join us. Become one of the Faces and Voices of Recovery today.

FACES & VOICES OF RECOVERY
901 N. Washington St.
Suite 601
Alexandria, VA 22314

FACES & VOICES OF RECOVERY
901 N. Washington St.
Suite 601
Alexandria, VA 22314

703-299-6760
www.facesandvoicesofrecovery.org